About

I'm a full-stack web developer based in Gujarat, India — fluent in Next.js, React, TypeScript, Node.js, PHP/Laravel, and the databases (PostgreSQL, MySQL, MongoDB) that hold production systems together.

I converted from an intern to a full-time backend developer within six months, then earned a promotion to full-stack within the year. Now I lead projects independently — from the first requirements conversation through to live deployment.

I've delivered complete full-stack web applications single-handedly for international clients — from requirements and architecture through to launch and beyond.

I'm comfortable owning scope, client communication, timelines, and production deployments across multiple concurrent projects. I care about getting real work in front of real users.
